BIG DAY FOR THE BOYS

Young Men's Christian Association Outing.

GOOD BICYCLE RACES EXPECTED

A Fine Program of Events has Been Prepared and Will be Carried Out. The Best Wheelmen in Town Will Take Part—It is Their First Picnic.

Secretary Morris and the boys of the Young Men's Christian association are going to have a big time in the East End tomorrow, and are making preparations accordingly.

It is the first picnic of the organization, and the many active young minds in connection with it are doing their best to make a good showing. In addition to the usual pleasures of picnics they have arranged a splendid program of sports, in which some of the best athletes in the city will contest. Chief among these will be the bicycle races. The first event will be a half mile contest, the second will consume a mile, and the third will be a half for boys under 16 years of age. Jewell, Bott and Rex, the three wheelmen who will enter the road race from Pittsburgh to Buffalo, will be among the contestants for honors, and the result of the dash in the East End is expected to show something of what they can do when they get started in the greater contest. Running races of 100 yards, 220 yards and half a mile will attract no end of youngsters after fame, while the standing broad jump, the running broad jump and running high jump will draw from the older members. Putting the shot, throwing the hammer and throwing the base ball will be contests of interest, as some of the boys pride themselves on their abilities in these lines. All races in the morning will be for the juniors, and the others will begin in the afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The popularity of the association together with the large number of members is expected to draw a great crowd. The entries are already enough to insure a great amount of sport, as the boys say they want fun and not records.

NOT DECIDED.

The Question of a Parade on Labor Day is Unsettled.

The celebration of Labor Day will be the greatest observance of the holiday ever known in the city, and those having the arrangements in charge say that nothing is being left undone.

At the meeting of the committee it was decided to hold the picnic in the East End, and arrange with the railroad company for excursion rates from surrounding towns. The question of a parade was discussed but not decided, and nothing will be done with it until the meeting with Trades council on Wednesday evening. Some members of the committee were anxious to have a turn out of all the labor organizations in town, believing that a greater crowd would be attracted by this means. Fully 5,000 visitors are expected to come from surrounding places, and those in charge of the celebration anticipate success. An effort will be made to have the manufacturers close their plants on that day, and the time made a general holiday in the town. At the picnic there will be all sorts of amusements to entertain the crowds. Sports of every character will be there, and some good events are expected.

The Stern Hand of Death.

Miss Florence Hawthorn Drabell, died at the home of her mother, Mrs. Jackman, Washington street, last night after a long illness suffering from heart disease and dropsy. Deceased was but 15 years old, a bright, vivacious young lady whose voice was the life of the household, and whose presence was the joy of her friends. She was a conscientious Christian, a close attendant to church duties, and gladly welcomed the transition with the knowledge that her place had been prepared in the sweet fields of Eden.

Services will be held at the late residence this evening at 8 o'clock by Reverend Taylor, of the Episcopal church, and the remains taken to Blairsville tomorrow morning for interment the next day. And when the cold clods fall heavily upon the casket the last earthly rites will have been paid to a soul as sweet as any that ever came to bless earth by life among mortals.

A Long Squash Vine.

In the lot in the rear of Colonel Hill's office is a squash vine which partakes of the properties of a vegetable wonder. Early in the season a seed was planted, and from it sprang four vines, each of which has attained the length of 40 feet. In four days it grew 10 feet, and that when there was no rain. Two enormous specimens of the fruit are on as many of the vines, while a number of smaller ones decorate other portions. The vine was intended to beautify the building but has long since passed the power of its owners.

AN OLD SOLDIER

Wants a Parade of the Valley Veterans at Pittsburgh.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW—The time of the national encampment of the Grand Army at Pittsburgh is drawing near, but it is not too late but what a feature might be arranged that would be a credit to the affair. My idea is to have the comrades of the entire valley outside of Pittsburgh and as far down as Steubenville turn out and join the procession in Pittsburgh on some specified day, and I believe it could be done if arrangements were started immediately. In the first place it would show the strength of the comrades and again, something just about as important to most of us, it would allow us to travel more cheaply as I believe such a body could get rates even below the special fare. Let the members of Gen. Lyon post or any of the other posts who see this suggest the idea at their next meeting and if suitable make East Liverpool headquarters for answers. Papers throughout the valley would confer a favor by mentioning the proposed action. AN OLD SOLDIER.

Want to Meet Here.

President Mackintosh and Secretary Anglemyer, of the Columbiania County Poultry Association, were in town on Saturday talking with some of the local enthusiasts regarding the holding of the meeting in 1895 in this city. The gentleman as well as all those from the northern part of the county who are interested in fine chickens, would like to have the show take place here if the proper spirit is shown. A great deal of interest in the association and its work is being manifested in the county, Salem and New Lisbon being spirited bidders for the show this year. There is little doubt that East Liverpool will get the next.

A Reduction is Feared.

An Irondale man, who refused to give his name for publication, was in the city on Saturday, and said that the tin plate workers were anxiously waiting the time when the scale now in operation would expire, as there would in all probability be a reduction of the wages now enjoyed by the men. The tariff was reduced one cent on the pound, that is from two and one-fifth to one and one-fifth, and the mill owners can not compete with the tin producers of Wales, where wages are much lower than here. Many residents of Irondale are Welshmen and understand the difference in wages from actual experience.

Can Not Find Podwell.

The friends of a young man named Podwell, who has resided with his parents on Third street, have not seen him since last week and are anxious to know his whereabouts. He was employed as a presser at the Standard, but went from work one night last week, leaving his tools behind. Since that evening he has not been seen. No cause is assigned for his disappearance, and none of his friends can imagine where he has gone. He is about 20 years old, and always bore an excellent reputation.

The New Schedule.

According to promise Superintendent Andrews inaugurated the new schedule on the street railway this morning much to the satisfaction of persons who use the road. The cars pass every 12 minutes now, and makes it more convenient for all. The motormen are also overjoyed at the change since it gives them work at full time, and enables them to draw the wages of old. If the company becomes so generous as to give the conductors their old places there will be a general thanksgiving.

Secretary Gazely Here.

Arthur E. Gazely, the young gentleman who made so many friends when engaged here as secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, reached the city Saturday evening and spent Sunday with friends. He spoke at the men's meeting yesterday afternoon. Mr. Gazely is at present connected with the association in Cleve-

HIDDEN IN A CLOSET

Officers Raid Frank Hamilton's Saloon Sunday,

AND FIND PLENTY OF PROOF

Five Men Were Concealed in a Pantry in the Barroom and Two Fell Out When Officer Supplee Opened the Door. Hamilton Notified to Appear.

With the return of prosperity to the city the temptation of saloonkeepers to keep open their places on Sunday becomes greater, and one man was captured almost in the act yesterday morning.

Chief Gill and Officer Supplee had learned enough about Frank Hamilton's place on Second street to warrant their keeping an eye on the saloon, and accordingly they were in the vicinity of the place yesterday morning about 11 o'clock when a half dozen or more slipped slyly in the back way to satisfy their thirst. Chief Gill remained in the yard to keep back several men who would probably have warned the saloonist of the presence of the officers. Even this precaution did not prevent Hamilton from getting wind of their approach, and just as Supplee was entering by the rear door he heard him coming from the bar room. The officer hid until Hamilton who was in his stocking feet had come out and then emerged and started toward the front of the place. Hamilton willingly allowed him to go through the two back rooms, but ordered him to stay away from the bar. The officer took no notice of him, but unlocked the door and entered the apparently empty room. The saloonist remarked that he was "probably satisfied now that there was nobody in the bar room," but Supplee knew a few things about the building and proceeded farther. There were wet spots on the counter where glasses of some fluid, presumably beer had been standing, but it is hardly to be supposed for long before a row of thirsty individuals, so the officer had a good reason for his suspicions. He went to a pantry in one corner of the room and pulled back the latch. Two terror stricken mortals who had been leaning against the door fell out, so sudden was the release of their support and after lighting several matches Officer Supplee brought forth three other men. The pantry contained a few chairs and some rubbish and had evidently been unused for some time. The presence of the men who could not possibly have gotten into the closet except by going through the bar room was considered evidence enough to warrant the police notifying Hamilton to appear before the mayor at 2 o'clock this afternoon. He will answer to a charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday, and the penalty in such cases is a heavy one. Unfortunately the city ordinance or state law do not cover the offense of loading in saloons on Sunday so the five inmates of the pantry were released after they were recognized. They will probably make good witnesses, in case Hamilton pleads not guilty.

THE BOYS KICK.

Members of Company E Fired For Non-Attendance at Drill Meetings.

Several of the members of Company E have been fined for not attending drill meeting and in a number of cases action has been taken against them for the collection of the amount.

In Squire Rose's court suit has been entered against David and Bert Buzzard, George Ewing and Walter Young. The amount in Ewing's case was not given, but Young was charged up with fines amounting to $2.70 and confessed judgment this morning. The Buzzard brothers claim to have been fined for absence on two nights on which they had good causes for staying away. One night was on the day of the funeral of their mother, and another time more recently when their grandmother lay dead at her late home on Avondale street. The Buzzard boys may make test cases out of the portion of the fines to which they object, and in case they do a lively legal contest will probably ensue.

Visiting Ministers.

Reverend Norris, of Pittsburgh, occupied the pulpit at the First Presbyterian church yesterday, and delivered two excellent sermons. The gentleman is well known in the city, being a brother of J. A. Norris.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, Reverend Salmon, of Empire, preached an inspiring sermon in the morning. The gentleman has been attending campmeeting, and the sermons delivered there drew him a large congregation yesterday.

Behind the Bars.

Two young bloods of this city went to Steubenville Saturday night, and are said to have languished behind the bars there nearly all day Sunday. They had enough left after settling with the mayor to pay their fare home by the freight car route and arrived here during the early hours of today. Indulgence in too much liquor caused their incarceration and they will probably sign the pledge now.

Mrs. Rachel Cain Dead.

Mrs. Rachel Cain died at her home in Beaver county on Saturday, after an illness of two weeks. Deceased was 85 years of age, and had many relatives in this section. J. C. Cain and family, of this city, attended the funeral, which took place at 10 o'clock this morning. She was the widow of Samuel Cain, who died several years ago.

Trial Tomorrow.

The case of the First National bank of Allegheny against John Rinehart, Dr. J. J. Ikirt and John Boyd for a note of $150 will come up for trial in Squire Rose's court tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The action against Messrs. Ikirt and Boyd is as endorsers of Rinehart's note, and an interesting legal contest is expected.

Married.

Mr. Charles Kauffman and Mrs. Cassidy were married by Rev. R. B. Whitehead at the Methodist Protestant parsonage Saturday night. The bride was formerly Miss Kate Shenkle and the happy couple are well known to East Liverpool residents.

CREATED THE COUNCIL

Daughters of America of Ohio are Organized.

THIS CITY GETS TWO OFFICERS

Dennison Secures an Equal Number While the Others are Scattered Over the State—The National Body Meets Tomorrow Morning and Delegates are Arriving.

The state council, Daughters of America, was instituted in the NEWS REVIEW building this morning by National councilor T. A. Gerbig, of Scranton, Pa.

At an early hour it was evident that local members of the order were expecting some unusual event, and committees going from the lodge room to the passenger station showed that delegates were expected to arrive on the early trains. Before any had come in two handsome flags floated from as many windows of the room, and the interior had been beautifully decorated in anticipation of the great event. By 9 o'clock many persons had assembled, and in half an hour preparations were made to form the state organization. Councilor Gerbig was there ready to do his part, and the impressive ceremony was carried out accordingly to program. The work required the morning, and it was noon before the council adjourned. The officers elected were as follows: Junior past state councilor, Miss Carrie Croghan, Seio; associate J. P. S. C., Lou V. Boyd, Coshocton state councilor, H. A. Malott, Hamilton; associate S. C., Miss Jennie Packer, Dennison; vice councilor, Harry A. Ewing, Dayton; associate V. C., Miss Clara Sterling, Cincinnati; state secretary, Miss Julia Tipton, Dennison; treasurer, Miss Rachel Grafton, Wellsville; conductor, Miss Katie Kain, Steubenville; warden, Miss Cora Mills, East Liverpool; inside sentinel, J. E. Anderson, East Liverpool; outside sentinel, Miss Nettie Fox, Massillon; national representative five years, Charles Wilson, Dayton; four years, J. E. Anderson; three years, Miss Jennie Packer, Dennison; two years, Miss Rachel Grafton, Wellsville; one year, Miss Sterling, Cincinnati. The council met again this afternoon, and transacted a great deal of business connected with the new organization. Good fellowship and patriotism reigned supreme, and the merry crowd not only demonstrated their ability to work, but also have a highly enjoyable time. It is expected that all the work of the council will be completed today, and the remainder of the time set for the enjoyment of the national meeting will not be taken up. Delegates for this began to arrive today, and will continue to come in until tomorrow afternoon when all are expected to be here. The first meeting will be held tomorrow morning, and business transacted from that time until the end comes.

East Liverpool extends hearty welcome to the delegates, and sincerely hopes that every one of them will not only enjoy the days spent here, but will leave the Crockery City bearing only pleasant memories of their visit.

A Subject For Remark.

It has been so long since rain fell in this city that the downpour yesterday morning and the showers during the day were greeted with expressions of universal satisfaction. Although the rainfall was not large it was sufficient to transform the several inches of dust into a sticky paste mass on the roads leading to the city, and do a wonderful amount of good to the truck gardens. Lawns were visibly improved, and a general good accomplished. Another heavy rain in the very near future would be appreciated.

Mashed the Buggy.

A horse driven by two young men, said to be from this city, got away from the driver on the Calcutta road yesterday, and for a time rolled the vehicle along the highway at an alarming rate of speed. One of the boys jumped when assured that the horse could not be controlled, but the other kept the lines and only let go when the buggy was overturned. He was scratched and bruised, but otherwise uninjured, while the top of the buggy was battered and torn.

Sons of St. George Will Banquet.

The Sons of St. George have issued a number of handsome invitations for their banquet to be held in Bradshaw hall Thursday evening. The feast will be enlivened by an excellent entertainment, and those fortunate enough to be among the guests can not but anticipate a delightful evening. Among those who will be entertained are the delegates to the state meeting of the order which convenes here this week.

ROBERT W. TAYLER will be the next congressman from the Eighteenth district.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND will likely go down in history as the greatest consumer of crow the world has ever known.

THE Democrats of Ohio will soon be called upon to meet in convention, and formulate a platform upon which its orators will stand in the coming campaign. Will it declare that protection is a fraud, and denounce it as unconstitutional as it did in Chicago a few years ago, or will it quietly sit down to the dish of crow Mr. Brice will bring from Washington, and eat with the relish shown by the once great and mighty Grover Cleveland?

OUR RIGHT.

The Ceramic City being the metropolis of the county has rights which should be respected. In the past it has been apparently the aim of some people to spread the idea that because we have no direct communication with the county seat we belong to some other part of Ohio, and are unworthy of recognition. It is not every day that you hear of any county gathering in East Liverpool, truth is that one never hears of them. Wellsville and Salem seem to be able to obtain their portion without difficulty, while Columbian has almost as many as the county seat. We are willing to concede New Lisbon the major portion even though it is a small town with no other right than that the county government is there located, but we will not stand by and see the impression sent out and cultivated that East Liverpool is desirous of standing alone in Columbian county. This city gladly acknowledges its superiority as a place of enterprise and energy, but that should not shut it out from enjoying the privileges it should have.

THE THIRD PARTY.

The convention of Populists held in Columbus developed the suspicion that there are not only a great many dissatisfied Democrats in Ohio, but there are enough of them, when linked with the followers of Coxey, to make it decidedly uncomfortable for the friends of Grover Cleveland. There can be no denying that the new movement, if such it can be styled, will poll a vote of some strength, neither can it be denied that the major portion of this will come from the ranks of Democracy. The free trade members who claim they have been betrayed by Gorman, Brice & Co., and have not been brought over as have Frank Hurd and Larry Neal, have a long knife in their boot, and they propose to have the Coxey men take it in hand and do the work. Republicans shun the new party because of its inconsistencies and irregularities. They have no reason to complain of the great victory of last year, all they desire is to see it repeated with a mightier turnout of votes than was ever before known in the Buckeye state. The proof of the Coxey puddling has been in its eating, and every man who pauses for a moment to think can readily see the great batch the Massillonian made of his commonweal. If the Populist vote reaches one-fourth the proportion its friends claim it will be prompted by dissatisfaction with Democracy and not love for Coxeyism.

READY TO ADJOURN.

Members of Both Houses Merely Await Cleveland's

ACTION ON THE TARIFF BILL.

No Likelihood of Legislation in the Senate Owing to Probable Lack of a Quorum. House Likely to Adjourn From Day to Day Until the End.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The final action of the president on the tariff bill is the only thing that stands between the senate and final adjournment. It is the general opinion that with the bill passed upon by the chief executive adjournment could be arranged within a day's time. The last of the appropriation bills received the final consideration of the senate during the past week, and even without the passage of the Murphy resolution, providing that there should be no further tariff legislation over which there is a contest, there would not have been much probability of any general legislation, owing to the likelihood of there being no quorum. The last recall Saturday discovered only 45 senators, two more than a quorum, in the chamber, and the highest number of the day was 54. Several have left since, and it is entirely probable that the session today will open without the number requisite to do business in the face of objection.

It is probable therefore that the daily sessions from this time forward will be brief and that only bills to which there is no opposition from any senator or over which there is no contest will be taken up. The Democrat managers hope to have the bill repealing the provision in the tariff bill exempting alcohol used in the arts and in the manufacture of medicinal preparations included in this list. There appears likelihood of opposition on the Republican side, and if there should be, this bill will necessarily go over until the next session. The Democratic members of the finance committee also hope to report the supplemental tariff bills during the week, but do not expect action on them. Probably considerable time will be spent in executive session in confirming nominations to which no one objects.

The house of representatives is ready. Its work has been completed, it is only waiting the action of the senate and of the president. It is probable that it will adjourn from day to day until congress adjourns.

It may be, however, that the time will be partly occupied by giving days to the several committees of the house to consider such business as they care to bring before the house, but this question has not been decided.

Speaker Crisp, who is at Old Point Comfort, returned this morning, and Mr. Outhwaite, one of the other members of the committee on rules, is out of the city, and no programme will be arranged until they return. Today, under the rules, suspension day, as is also the last six days of the session, but as a resolution for adjournment will not be passed until the president acts on the tariff bill; the rule with reference to suspension days will not go into effect until the date of adjournment has been fixed by both houses.

The Republican Side of It.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Representative Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, the senior Republican member of the present appropriations committee of the house and who was chairman of the appropriations committee during the Fifty-first or "Reed" congress, has prepared a statement which he will submit to the house setting forth a comparison from his standpoint of the appropriations for the present and the Fifty-first congress. It is captioned, "pension appropriations reduced $9,099,504. Total of other appropriations increased."

The letter shows assets of less than $8,000, which is insufficient to pay the preferred claims and the costs of administration, which will leave the general creditors nothing.

The partial account in the Davis & Foster assignment shows $149,000 for distribution, which warrants the declaring of a 57 1/2 per cent dividend. In the Foster & Co. assignment the report shows that more than $100,000 of claims have not been filed, and hence no dividend can be declared. It reveals also preferred claims amounting to more than $18,000. The debt is $23,656.61, and the credits $3,894.75.

TORPEDOES PREGNABLE TO JAPS.

On Three Successive Nights Their Vessels Elude the Defenses of a Fortified Chinese Harbor. The Japanese Government Arranges a Domestic Loan.

TOKIO, Aug. 20.—Russia and other powers continue to endeavor to restore peace between China and Japan.

The government of Japan has determined to issue a domestic loan of $50,000,000. A strong outburst of patriotic feeling has been evoked by this proposition and the people in all parts of the country are eagerly subscribing to the loan.

A Washington dispatch says: Dispatches have been received at the Japanese legation which corroborate the published stories that Korean soldiers are fighting with the Japanese against China. They regard it as most significant also that the Korean political prisoners have been released, since most of them were imprisoned for their attitude toward the Chinese officials.

The report that the Japanese government is trying to negotiate a fifty million dollar foreign loan to carry on the war is not believed at the Japanese legation here. It is said that the finances of the government are in such excellent condition that it is improbable outside aid would be sought at this stage of the hostilities, although a recourse to a loan later, if the war is prolonged would not be unexpected.

Surprise is manifested at the course of China in seeking a loan from the money markets of Europe, for such an entanglement with western powers has seldom been assumed by that conservative Oriental nation. China's borrowings from abroad in the past are said to have aggregated but $15,000,000, it being their time-honored policy to keep clear of international financing.

A New York dispatch says: Count Mishima, a cousin of the mikado of Japan, is in this city. The count has been traveling incognito ever since he left his native country over a year ago.

At that time he came overland to this city from San Francisco and spent some time here and in Washington. He also visited the shipyards of the Cramps at Chester, Pa., when here last.

A dispatch from Shanghai says that on three successive nights Japanese torpedo boats forced the boom guarding the water entrance to Wei-Hai-Wei. They either evaded or countermanded the torpedoes that had been laid by the Chinese, and effected an entrance to the port, the defenses of which had heretofore been supposed to be impregnable. The Japanese did not engage the forts as it is said they were only in search of information as to the lines to be followed in the event of being decided to make an attack in force upon the place.

"I heard you joining in the Te Deum," he urged. "Sing once more. I love it. There, they are just beginning again. Do you know the words?"

She nodded, then raised her head, and a glad young voice caroled through the listening woods:

"Holy, holy, holy! All

Heseltine's triumphant choir shall sing,
When the ransomed nations fall
At the footstool of their King.
They shall saints and seraphim
Hats and voices, swell one hymn
Around the throne with full accord.
Holy, holy, holy Lord!"

There was silence when the music ceased. She had turned her face toward the church, and as the melody died away in one prolonged, triumphant chord she still stood in reverent attitude, as though listening for the words of benediction. He, too, was silent, but his eyes were fixed on her. He was 35, she not 20. He had lived his soldier life wifelss; but, like other soldiers, his heart had had its rubs and aches in the past. Years before he had sought a black void when the girl he fancied while yet he wore the academic gray calmly told him she preferred another. Nor had the intervening years been devoid of their occasional yearnings for a mate of his own in the isolation of the frontier, of the monotony of garrison life, but fitting rancies had left no trace upon his strong heart. The love of his life only dawned upon him at this late day when he looked into her glorious eyes, and his whole soul went out in passionate worship of the fair girl whose presence made that sunlit aisle a heaven. Were he to live a thousand years, no scene on earth could rival in his eyes the love-haunted woodland pathway wherein, like forest queen, she stood, the sunshine and leafy shadows dancing over her graceful form, the goldenrod enhancing her dark and glowing beauty, the sacred influences of the day throwing their mystic charm about her as though angels guarded and shielded her from harm. His life had reached its climax. His fate was sealed. His heart and soul were centered in one sweet girl, and all in one brief hour in the woodland lane at Sablon.

She could not fail to see the deep emotion in his eyes as at last she turned to break the silence.

"Shall we go?" she said simply.

"It is time, but I wish we could remain."

"You do not go to church very often at Sibley, do you?"

"I have not heretofore, but you would teach me to worship." "You have taught me," he muttered below his breath as he extended a hand to assist her down the sloping bank toward the avenue. She looked up quickly once more, pleased, yet shy, and shifted her great bunch of goldenrod so that she could lay her hand in his and lead upon its steady strength down the incline, and so, hand in hand, with old Dobbin ambling placidly behind, they passed out from the shaded pathway to the glow and radiance of the sunlit road.

CHAPTER XII.

"Colonel Maynard, I admit everything you say as to the weight of the evidence," said Frank Armitage 20 minutes later, "but it is my faith—understand me, my faith, I say—that she is utterly innocent. As for that damnable letter, I do not believe it was ever written to her. It is some other woman."

"What other is there, or was there?" was the colonel's simple reply.

"That is what I mean to find out. Will you have my baggage sent after me tonight? I am going at once to the station, and thence to Sibley. I will write you from there. If the midnight visitor should prove to have been Jerrold, he can be made to explain. I have always held him to be a conceited fop, but never either crack-brained or devoid of principle. There is no time for explanation now. Goodby and keep a good lookout. That fellow may be here again."

And in an hour more Armitage was skimming along the winding river side en route to Sibley. He had searched the train from pilot to rear platform, and no man who in the faintest degree resembled Mr. Jerrold was on board. He had wired to Chester that he would reach the fort that evening, but would not resume duty for a few days. He made another search through the train as they neared the city, and still there was none who in stature or appearance corresponded with the descriptions given of the sinewy visitor.

Late in the afternoon Chester received him as he alighted from the train at the little station under the cliff. It was a beautiful day, and numbers of people were driving or riding out to the fort, and the high bridge over the gorge was constantly resounding to the thunder of hoofs. Many others, too, had come out on the train, for the evening dress parade always attracted a swarm of visitors. A corporal of the guard, with a couple of men, was on hand to keep vigil on the arrivals and to permit certain proscribed parties to re-enter the cars and go on, should they attempt to revisit the post, and the faces of these were lighted up as they saw their old adjutant, but none others of the garrison appeared.

"Let us wait a moment and get these people out of the way," said Armitage.

"I want to talk with you. Is Jerrold here?"

"Yes. He came in just 10 minutes after I telegraphed to you. He was present to possess peculiar characteristics, family traits, some of them. Of course you've kept an eye on McLeod. Where is he?"

Chester stood leaning on the rail, breathing slowly and heavily. His eyes dilated as he gazed at Armitage, who was surveying him coolly, though the tone in which he spoke betrayed a new interest and a vivid one.

"I confess I never thought of him in connection with this affair," said Chester.

"There's the one essential point of difference between us," was the reply. "You go on the supposition that there is only one solution to this thing, and that a woman must be dishonored to begin with. I believe there can be several solutions, and that there is only one thing in the lot that is at all impossible.

"What's that?"

"Miss Renwick's knowledge of that night's visitor or of any other secret or sin. I mean to work other theories first, and the McLeod trail is a good one to start on. Where can I get a look at him?"

The Liverpool people attending the railroad picnic at Brady lake Saturday report an enjoyable time. An immense crowd was present, and the affair passed off without a mishap.

A team belonging to Mr. Starkey, of Starkey addition, ran off in the Diamond, Saturday, and the wagon was broken by a collision. No other damage resulted as the horses were quickly stopped.

Somewhere out in the Rockies this time. He was ordered back to his troop five days ago, and they are out scouting at this moment unless I'm vastly mistaken. You have seen the morning dispatches?"

"About the Indians? Yes. Looks squally at the Spirit Rock reservation.

Do you mean that McLeod is there?"

"That's where his troop ought to be by this time. There is too small a force on the trail now, and more will have to go if a big outbreak is to be prevented."

"Then he has gone, and I cannot see him. Let me look at the window then."

A few steps brought them to the terrace, and there, standing by the west wall and looking up at the closed slats of the dormer window, Captain Chester retold the story of his night adventure. Armitage listened attentively, asking few questions. When it was finished, the latter turned and walked to the rear door, which opened on the terrace. It was locked.

"The servants are having a holiday, I presume," he said. "So much the better. Ask the quartermaster for the key of the front door, and I'll go in while everybody is out looking at dress parade. There goes first call now. Let your orderly bring it to me here, will you?"

Ten minutes later, with beating heart, he stood and uncovered his handsome head and gazed silently, reverently around him. He was in her room.

It was dainty as her own dainty self. The dressing table, the windows, the pretty white bed, the broad, inviting lounge, the work table and basket, the very washstand, were all trimmed and decked alike, white and yellow prevailing. White lace curtains draped the window on the west—that fatal window—and the two that opened out on the roof of the piazza. White lace curtains draped the bed, the dressing table and the washstand. White lace or some equally flimsy and feminine material hung about her bookshelves and worktable and over the lounge, and bows of bright yellow ribbon were everywhere, yellow pincushions and wall pockets hung about the toilet table, soft yellow rug lay at the bed and lounge side, and a sunshiny tone was given to the whole apartment by the shades of yellow silk that hung close to the windows.

Malaria-Crazed Man's Death.

KEARNEY, N. J., Aug. 20.—Thomas Hewitt, an iron moulder, made an attempt to kill his wife and four children. He wounded them all, but not fatally, and then sprang from a window and ended his life. Hewitt has been suffering for some time past from typhoid malaria.

I suppose so. I don't know. In these few days everybody is fighting shy of him. He thinks it is doing and looks black and sulky at me, but is too proud or too much afraid of consequences to ask the reason of the cold shudders and averted looks. Gray has taken seven days' leave and gone off with that little girl of his to place her with relatives in the east. He has heard the stories, and it is presumed that some of the women have told her. She was down sick here a day or two."

"Well, now for the window and the ladder. I want to see the outside through your eyes, and then I will view the interior with my own. The colonel bids me do so."

Together they slowly climbed the long stairway leading up the face of the cliff. Chester stopped for a breathing spell more than once.

"You're all out of condition, man," said the younger captain, pausing impatiently. "What has undone you?"

"This trouble and nothing else. By gad, it has unstrung the whole garrison, I believe. You never saw our people fall off so in their shooting. Of course we expected Jerrold to go to pieces, but nobody else."

Blew Out His Wife's Brains.

DADE CITY, Fla., Aug. 20.—Milton Higgs came home from Floral City, where he works, to see his wife. As he reached home his wife drove up in a cart with another man. Higgs led the woman into the house and blew out her brains. He escaped.

A fight occurred at one of the river potteries this morning between a couple of workmen, and one of the pair had a badly damaged face as a result of the affray, presenting a bloody appearance as he came away from the place. No arrests have been made so far although it is not a certainty that they will not be.

Lavinia, wife of Alfred Kieswetter, died at her home on the Lisbon road at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, after an illness of several weeks. Deceased was a daughter of Adam Reinheimer, and was only 20 years of age. She leaves a husband, and child but three months old. The funeral took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the family residence, the Presbyterian minister officiating. The remains were laid in Spring Grove cemetery.

At the Mercy of Firebugs.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 20.—The officials of the fire department have decided that the city is practically at the mercy of unknown firebugs. During the past few weeks there have been several incendiary fires, two lumberyards and a large barn having been destroyed.

A fight occurred at one of the river potteries this morning between a couple of workmen, and one of the pair had a badly damaged face as a result of the affray, presenting a bloody appearance as he came away from the place. No arrests have been made so far although it is not a certainty that they will not be.

"I mean he fell flat on his face the moment he saw her and hasn't been in good form from that moment to this. The doctor says it's heart disease."

"That's what the colonel says troubles Mrs. Maynard. She was senseless and almost pulseless some minutes last night. What manner of man is McLeod?"

EMMA GOLDMAN'S RECEPTION.

The Female Anarchist Flings Invectives at Her Legal Prosecutors.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—A reception was given Emma Goldman Sunday night at the Thalia theater, which nearly 3,000 persons attended. The affair was generally tame, and the special force of detectives detailed to watch the proceedings had nothing to do.

Charles Wilfred Mowbray, the English anarchist, was also present and proceeded Emma Goldman by a speech in which he eulogized her heroism and self-sacrifice.

When Emma Goldman came on the platform there was a great burst of applause. Her speech was chiefly devoted to a scathing attack upon all who were concerned in her prosecution, conviction and imprisonment. She called Assistant District Attorney McIntyre a coward. Speaking of the judge before whom she was tried, she said: "Judge Martine is not to be compared to Santo, Ravachal or Henry, who were all defenders of a cause, the believed in."

"I am with you again and again under the old flag of anarchy and freedom," she concluded.

—Threw Sovereign Out.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20.—District Assembly No. 1 of the Knights of Labor has been the bone of contention between the Sovereign and anti-Sovereign factions for some time past and Sunday night's meeting was attended by Sovereign, General Secretary Hayes, T. B. Maguire and Henry B. Martin of the executive board in an attempt to settle the difficulties. The session was so stormy that Sovereign is said to have called in a policeman to clear the hall. Not succeeding in this, it is asserted that the opposition forcibly ejected Sovereign, while his followers took precipitous leave.
